Henry Herman has bought the lot on Main street owned by Barney Naber, on which stands the building occupied as a millinery store by Mrs. N. K. Seymour, and will erect a two story brick building in which he will have a saloon with living rooms above. The building will be 20x60, with press brick front and all modern conveniences. The building now occupying the lot has been bought by R. D. Emmons, and will be moved onto his lot on the west side of Main street, the old land mark in which he did business many years having been torn down this week.

NICHOLAS J. SCHUMACHER ON TRIAL

Nicholas J. Schumacher, the Trevor saloon keeper, was arraigned in the circuit court at Kenosha, Monday morning on a charge of killing John Wren of Manitowish. The case has attracted wide attention in Kenosha county and when the case was called the court room was pretty well filled with people. Schumacher was in court represented by Attorneys Cavanaugh and Stewart, while the state was represented by R. V. Baker, the district attorney.

The work of selecting a jury took up the entire morning session of the court and when an adjournment was taken for dinner there were still two men needed to complete the list. The facts in the case are so universally known about the county that there was considerable trouble in securing jurors. The panel was exhausted before the attorneys had completed their strikes and then the sheriff was ordered to call volunteers from the spectators in court. There was but one man in the court room whom the sheriff deemed acceptable as a juror and after the strike by the state the court adjourned in order to allow the sheriff time to find some one to sit in the case. The attorneys for Schumacher are planning to make a hard fight to save him from paying the punishment for manslaughter in the fourth degree.

OLD SWINDLE AGAIN

C. H. Hurd, of Kenosha, is Selected as Victim of Spanish Swindle

LETTER TELLS AN UNUSUAL TALE

Swindler in a Spanish Prison Alleges to Be a Relative of Kenosha Druggist

The old Spanish swindle, the most famous known to the detective forces of the world, made its appearance in Kenosha on Saturday, says the Kenosha News, when C. H. Hurd, the well known Main street druggist, received one of the famous letters alleged to have been written by a prisoner in a Spanish prison. Some time ago it was reported that this famous gang of swindlers had been broken, but the letter received by the Kenosha man was mailed from Valencia less than two weeks ago, and it is by far the most clever ever sent out by the band of noted swindlers.

The letter purports to be written by one "Manuel Garcia," a Cuban emigrant, confined in the castle at Valencia serving a term of eighteen years on a charge of high treason to the King of Spain. In his letter Garcia states that he is a relative of Mrs. Hurd, from the fact that he married one Marry Hurd while in Cuba. Continuing with his clever story Garcia declares that his wife has often talked with him of her relatives in Kenosha, and had told him that they would aid if he was in trouble. The writer then declared that he had written to Mr. Hurd to ask him to take the guardianship of his only daughter, a girl fifteen years of age, who was now kept in a pension at St. Albans. He stated that he was willing to pay for the work of keeping the girl by turning over an order on the bank of England for the sum of $9,000 pounds sterling.

Right here the swindler began to get in his clever work. He stated that at the breaking out of the war with Cuba he had been sent there as a Spanish soldier, and while there he had managed to amass a large sum of money through concessions granted to members of the Spanish army. With the coming of General Weyler to take charge of the army he lost his position and was forced to sell out his holdings and join the Cuban army. A short time later he claims that he fled from Cuba and managed to get a ship to England, where he placed his treasure in the bank of England, taking in return a certificate of deposit payable to the bearer.

Shortly after this he received word of the death of his wife at Carthagena, Spain, and that his daughter was in dire distress. Fearing arrest, he claims to have had a special portmanteau made with a secret compartment, and placing his certificate of deposit in this compartment he left for Spain. He was arrested as soon as he landed in Spain by the agents of the government, and after a trial was sentenced to eighteen years penal servitude. His luggage, including the certificate, is alleged now to be held for the costs of the action which are said to have amounted to a pretty sum. As soon as he was taken to the castle at Valencia he discovered that the chaplain in charge was an old friend, and by his treachery to his government Garcia alleges that he has been able to send out this letter. In concluding he asks Mr. Hurd to send the sum needed to get the certificate of deposit out of the hands of the government, and that he take the daughter and with the money secured in England provide for her keeping in the future. The writer asks that the matter be held strictly as confidential, and that all letters be sent to a third party in Austria, where the arrangements for the transfer of the daughter and the deposit can be made.

Mr. Hurd has turned the matter over to the officials. This is the second time that efforts have been made to work this game in Kenosha, as a similar letter was sent to Frank H. Lyman, the well known shoe dealer, nearly ten years ago.

The swindle has been in operation for more than forty years, the swindlers adapting their work to new conditions. It is claimed that they have secured more than forty million dollars from different countries by their operation.

A new idea in Cough Syrup is advanced in Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Besides containing Pine Tar, Honey and other valuable remedies, it is rendered Laxative, so that it insures a prompt and efficient evacuation of the bowels. It relaxes the nervous system and cures all coughs, colds, croup, etc. A red clover blossom and the honey bee is on every bottle of the Original Laxative Cough Syrup--Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. Sold by J. H. Swan, Antioch.

Exchange Screenings.

The report of Grand Siro Wright to the sovereign lodge of Odd Fellows in session at Philadelphia, shows the subordinate lodge membership to be 1,217,144; Rebekah membership 474,659; Encampment membership 177,829. It leads all fraternal orders of this or any other country.

There is a famine in labor in Kenosha, and the principal factories in that city are now sending agents to Chicago and other cities in an effort to secure men to fill up the vacant places at the benches in the shops here. The Simmons Manufacturing company, the Thomas B. Jeffery company, the Visible Typewriter company, the N. B. Allen's Sons Tannery company and the Badger Brass company all have the "men wanted" sign out without results.

The year of 1905 has proved a banner year for the farmer. Good prices have not only ruled for his products but nature has smiled and yielded in the best manner she is able to. In respect to the quantity and quality of the yield the section of country in which we are located is this year equal to any in the country. Hay was an immense crop and the harvest of small grain has filled all the granaries. Wheat has yielded 30 bushels to the acre, rye 25 and oats 50. The binders are starting to work on the cornfields where also a bumper yield is the ruling feature.

We almost feel sorry for a girl who is stuck on a fellow who will spend a dollar for ice cream and chocolates and three for a Sunday buggy ride for her on a six dollar a week salary, says an exchange. Somehow, we see visions of barefoot children, a frowny-headed woman over a wash tub, tin cans for dishes on the table and a combination of corn-cob pipe and a man in the kitchen corner. The young man who lives within his means while he is single, usually has a good bank account after he is married.

Census takers have found what is believed to be the largest family in Wisconsin in that of Mr. and Mrs. A. Verkullen, of Little Chute. They are parents of 27 children, all but three of whom are living. The father is 54 years old and the mother is 52. They were married June 1, 1875. Among their offerings are three pairs of twins. Of the 24 children living 12 are boys. Five of the children are married and the oldest son is the father of five children. Not long ago a wealthy Irish contractor died, leaving to his wife a good sized fortune in real estate and bonds.

One Editor Sues Another.

A suit for $20,000 against Frank H. Just, of the Libertyville Independent, and W. E. Davis, of Libertyville, was filed on Thursday by Frank T. Fowler, editor of the Waukegan Sun.

This suit is the result of a sensational attack on Fowler in the Independent of June 16th, in which interviews purporting to have been given to the Independent by George W. Hinman, editor of the Inter-Ocean; John M. Elenz, F. W. Block, Heaton Owsley, brother-in-law of former Mayor Harrison; Albert W. Spohnle & Co., and T. E. Ryan, of the Citizens' Construction Company, all of Chicago, were published.

These people in the alleged interviews made charges against Fowler's character and past life.

The papers in the suit were placed in the sheriff's hands and Deputy Sheriff C. E. Thayer was sent to Libertyville to serve them.

Dowie Pays Out $90,000.

According to reports received from Tampico, where John Alexander Dowie has made arrangements to establish a colony patterned after the style of his Zion City colony, Dowie has just paid by draft $90,000 to Lieut. Col. Manuel Gonzales, owner of the Gonzales ranch, the property purchased for the purpose of establishing a colony of Zionists. The original purchase price was $1,200,000.

Quartz Vessels Leak.

The new quartz vessels, so valuable for their endurance of temperature changes, have disadvantages. They leak at the high temperatures, and Berthelot, using tubes with walls 1-80 of an inch thick, lost a third of the oxygen and a sixth of the nitrogen in one hour at 1,400 degrees C. The sealed-up gases were originally at about air pressure.

The Original Laxative Cough Syrup is Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar. It expels all cold from the system by acting as a cathartic on the bowels. It relieves the feverish conditions of the throat, draws out the inflammation, cures the cough and strengthens the mucous membranes of the lungs and bronchial tubes. Kennedy's Laxative Honey and Tar is a certain, safe, prompt and harmless cure for colds, croup and the whooping cough. Sold by J. H. Swan, Antioch.

TRIES TO DICTATE

County Board Repudiates Last Day Action With a Rebuke to Supervisor

WILHITE, OF ZION CITY, LOSES OUT

He Claims That There Was Unjust Discrimination in Charging of Fees

On the last day of its meeting the board of supervisors passed a resolution in regard to fees that was introduced by Supervisor Wilhite, of Zion City, only to revoke it last Thursday at the Libertyville adjourned session.

In an interview with Mr. Brockway it develops that some time ago Mr. Wilhite awaited upon him and asked him to reduce the fees on Zion City leases that were filed. Wilhite is alleged to have said, "I do not care how much you charge the 'ordinary run' of our people, but when 'wo' bring down a hundred or so, let us have a special rate on account of the number."

Mr. Brockway indignantly spurned this offer as dishonest. Then Wilhite is alleged to have taken the matter up with the Zion law department, which assured him that the supervisors had no jurisdiction in lowering or raising of fees, as did other competent legal authority.

Nevertheless, Wilhite is said to have prepared a resolution which he offered on the last day of the September meeting of the board of supervisors without notifying Mr. Brockway, that ran about as follows: "That fees for the recording of instruments be based on actual labor, that of transcribing, or comparing the printed parts, and that of getting the printed parts into record."

"That the county waive all claims to any amounts in excess of this basis of reckoning, the purpose being to prevent any 'unjust discrimination' which may occur."

The board passed this resolution and as soon as the vote was recorded Mr. Wilhite prepared for the office of the recorder, and flourishing the document, demanded the reduction in fees. He is also alleged to have threatened Mr. Brockway until that official showed him the door after an altercation.

Meantime the board had adjourned to Libertyville for Thursday. There it discovered that it had taken up a matter where it had no jurisdiction and as a result another resolution was offered and passed to the effect that there was no unjust discrimination in the recorder's office; that the resolution was passed through misrepresentation and misunderstanding; that the board has every confidence in the recorder and approves his stand.

Although the matter has been kept quiet, following on the resolution of Thursday the facts leaked out and are public property. Whether or not any action will be taken by the board against the Zion City supervisor cannot be surmised, but it is likely that he appreciated the rap on the knuckles that Thursday's resolution implies.

A $5,000,000 Park.

Plans are about completed for the organization of a $5,000,000 company to construct and operate an immense amusement park at Ravinia, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. The principal owner will be the Chicago & Milwaukee Electric Railroad, which has at present a track operating through Ravinia to Chicago, and which will be in operation through Zion City by the middle of November.

It was announced that Frank C. Bostock, "the animal king" and proprietor of the most expensive animal shows in the world, will be managing director of the enterprise, and one of the principal owners next to the railroad. Bostock now runs a hippodrome at Blackpool, England, the Paris Hippodrome, and another in Cleveland, his successful one at Coney Island. Another New Yorker who will be interested in the park is Daniel V. Arthur, the theatrical manager.

Are You Engaged?

Engaged people should remember, that, after marriage, many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their digestions in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. A. Brown, of Bennettville, S. C., says: "For years, my wife suffered intensely from dyspepsia, complicated with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters, which helped her at once, and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." J. H. Swan, druggist, sells and guarantees them, at 50c a bottle.

AUCTION SALE.

The undersigned will sell at public auction on the Deagan farm, 2 miles west of Wadsworth and 2 miles south-west of Baswell, on Tuesday, October 3, beginning at 1 o'clock sharp, the following described property, namely: 5 head choice milk cows, 4 two year old heifers, 2 yearling calves, 3 work horses, 1 brown horse, 11 years old, 1 bright bay mare, 13 years old, 1 road horse, 12 years old, 1 set nearly new double harness, 1 milk wagon, 1 hay rack, 1 hay rack, 1 nearly new McCormick mower, 1 new spring tooth cultivator, 1 seeder, 10 tons tame hay, 1 stack millet, 8 acres corn in shock, 25 spring chickens, 1 hog trough, forks, shovels, post mill, rakes, hoes, 2 one-man saws, iron beetle and wedge, milk cans, and other articles too numerous to mention. The usual terms.

E. E. Curry, Proprietor.

E. M. Ames, Auctioneer.

Borden Factory Contracts for Milk.

The Borden factory at McHenry contracted for its winter supply of milk at the plant last Friday morning. About the same amount as was handled was contracted for, which means that nearly all the patrons have renewed their contracts. The average price for the coming six months is $1.35. The prices for the different months are as follows:

October.....	$1.25
November.....	1.30
December.....	1.35
January.....	1.40
February.....	1.45
March.....	1.50

Like Finding Money.

Finding health is like finding money--so think those who are sick. When you have a cough, cold, sore throat, or chest irritation, better act promptly like W. C. Barber, of Sandy Level, Va. He says: "I had a terrible chest trouble, caused by smoke and coal dust on my lungs; but after finding no relief in other remedies, was cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds." Greatest sale of any cough or lung medicine in the world. At J. H. Swan's drug store; 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Submarine Forest.

By means of glass-bottomed boats it has been discovered that the bottom of Monterey bay, Cal., is a beautiful submarine forest of sea oranges, green ribbons, horse tail, sea poms, etc. Some of the plants are thirty feet in height.

It is impossible to have a clear head, an active brain, a vigorous constitution or a strong body when the digestion is weak or when the stomach is out of order. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure will put the stomach and digestive organs in good condition and improve the general condition. Sold by J. H. Swan, Antioch.

Effect of Wall Paper.

When papering a room remember that large patterns and dark colors will make it appear smaller, while a plain or striped paper, if a light hue, will give an impression of increased size.

RUNNING MEET TO BE HELD

Despite the circulation of the petition which has for its purpose the stopping of the running meet at the trotting track at Libertyville next week, promoters of the event are going ahead with their plans and it appears that they seem certain that the affair is to be pulled off.

Patrons of the trotting meet at Libertyville were interested in seeing about twenty men and teams at work grading as if for a railroad spur from the electric line into the race track grounds. It developed that the men were working laying tracks which are to be run into the grounds and which are to be used by the promoters of the running meet next week.

It is stated that the plan is to have the Illinois Central cars run out to Rockfeller via the Wisconsin Central in view of the St. Paul having refused to carry the patrons from Chicago. The cars will then be transferred to the electric line at Rockfeller and run right over that line to Libertyville and into the race track. The all-important matter of transportation accommodations to the track will thus be provided for. This, it was stated this week, was the big stumbling block in the way of the meet and from the outset the promoters stated that if they could get the people there they could and would pull off the meet.

Thus, with the graders rushing work even during the trotting meet, it appears that somebody is certain that the running meet is to be held, for if there was any doubt, it is argued that they would not go to the expense of laying tracks into the place at this time.

THE DIAMOND RIVER

BY DAVID MURRAY

"It strikes me," said Jethroe, "those natives are just blazing away from their camp on the other side to keep their own hearts up. I'll have a look out. Stay here, and don't expose yourself."

With that he crawled silently away to the top of the hill which sheltered them. Everything was strangely quiet for a quarter of an hour, and at the end of that time he returned.

"There's nothing doing," he said, in a tone of complete indifference. "But," he added in a freer fashion, "we are only just in time. These natives know enough to tell a stone when they see one, and it stands to reason that they should like to keep what they have found to themselves."

"But, surely," said Harvey, "it's poor tactics to fire on everybody that happens to pass this way without even inquiring whether they guess or know anything."

"Native tactics," said Jethroe, laughing. "I've been thinking," he went on suddenly, "that we might do a good deal more than get right on at once. We should have very little more than half a dozen miles before us. These natives haven't come across the road find yet, or they wouldn't be wasting their time digging holes up here. A single day may do us business when we are once upon the ground. If we start now, even if we make a detour of three or four miles to keep out of sight of the enemy, we can do half of it before the moon falls us. What do you say to it?"

"As you will, sir," said Harvey. "I am in your hands."

"Come on, then," said Jethroe. "Just used on that fellow, will you? Twist your toe well into his ribs, or you'll make an impression upon him. That's right!"

He addressed the half breed in his own tongue, and the fellow got up and began to shamble sleepily about. Jethroe himself did most of the simple work of preparation, but Harvey assisted him in lowering the white tilt of the cart, which in the dazzling moonlight made an object altogether too conspicuous for safety.

When all was ready, they set out on foot, Jethroe leading, the half breed following with the cart, and Harvey bringing up the rear. One of the wheels of the cart, which had from time to time complained, began now to shriek in a most malignant manner, as if it were alive, and were bent at every revolution on proclaiming the whereabouts of the fugitives to the world. Jethroe svented with apprehension, but Jethroe came round in his imperturbable way, chopped open a tin of salted mutton, with an ax, found fat enough for his purpose, anointed the creaking axle, and then went back to his post of leader.

The way he chose set his back to the river for a full mile. Then he began to trend to the left at a wide angle, and, after another mile, he arranged his course to keep a parallel course with the river bed, which, from the time of its sudden dryness at the mountain's edge, ran almost in a straight line for as many miles as it could be kept in sight. The plain hereabouts was very level, and they had easy going. No incident of moment disturbed the march, and not a sign of an enemy was detected. Once in the still night air Harvey fancied that he heard a clamor of far away voices, but the sounds that dwell in silence were thick and loud in his ears, and he could not be sure that he was not tricked by fancy.

The sinking of the moon put an end to the journey, and they unhitched once more. The half caste, it appeared, had as purely animal-minded a faculty for forgetting fear as he had for suffering from it, and his last hand-stroke was barely over before he was asleep.

"Get what rest you can," said Jethroe to his nephew. "I'll take watch till daylight."

He settled himself in his blanket against the cart, and lounged there with his blanket across his knees. Harvey disposed himself close by at full length and tried to sleep. But to be shot at for the first time is an experience which some men find exciting, and, in spite of all he could do, his mind would insist on reproducing for him the dash of the first three shots and the yells of the startled half caste, and then the stampeding mules and the wild race after them, and a hundred little thoughts, sensations and incidents which had passed so swiftly as to seem unnoticed, though now he found them indelibly stamped upon his memory.

This fidgety state of mind dogged his body, and, without knowing it, he turned this way and that until Jethroe spoke to him.

"Can't sleep, eh?"

"No," said Harvey. "I never was wider awake in my whole life."

"What are you thinking about?" asked Jethroe. "If you can't sleep, I mustn't let you have a yarn. What are you thinking about?"

"Well," said Harvey, evading the question a little, "I've been thinking about you, sir."

"What about me?" asked Jethroe.

"I've been wondering why a man who already does not know what to do with his money should live as you have lived ever since I have known you for the sake of money."

"Well," said Jethroe, "it's a question I have asked myself sometimes. But is it for the sake of more? Now, that is the point when you come to think it over. Am I greedy for money? Not a bit of it. Power? That's another matter. But what's really my point here? I'm in my right, and I won't be beaten. I'm one of those who can't bear to be bluffed, my lad. I wouldn't allow myself to be bullied by a crowd of cut-throat ruffians like the Ezekiel gang. What d'ye say? Might better pay to let 'em have their own way? You miss the point. It isn't a question of how it pays when once you get a man's back up. It's a question of the proper pride and the grit in his own nature, Harvey. Here's a certain advantage belongs honestly to me. Here's a gang of rascals claiming a share in it without a ghost of reason. Now, there's only one thing can make me yield to them, and that is—fear. Well, you see, I'm not a very timid man. I got out of the habit of being frightened long ago."

I'm not going back to it for the Ezekiel Company, don't you believe it."

Harvey had nothing to say in answer and the conversation died. The younger man had fallen into an uneasy slumber when his uncle's voice aroused him.

"Boot and saddle!" said Jethroe, gaily. But they paused for breakfast, and then set out upon their way again, uneventfully until the moment at which Jethroe stretched out his hand and cried "The last landmark!"

And at that instant, as if he had given a signal, a little storm of bullets kicked up the dust about them, and one of the mules, being hit, screamed hideously.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Jethroe buried himself from the saddle, threw the reins to Harvey, and took the injured mule by the head. The beast was plunging madly, and it was touch and go for a new stampede with the whole team. Jethroe set a revolver close to the wounded animal's head and fired.

"Now," he said, "we're in a tight corner. There's no shelter for a mile. What's to be done?"

"You're captain here, sir," said Harvey.

He had been thinking much of Jethroe's latest words, and had been making up a mind of his own concerning them. Now the chance was here to show himself whether or no the mind would stand.

"We'll give 'em as little to fire at as we can," said Jethroe. "Help me to turn the cart's tail toward 'em. That'll shelter the mules, anyway, and give us a bit of cover, too."

Harvey lent a hand, with a swell of pride in his heart at his own coolness; but he was not long in discovering that the pride had some hysteria in it. If he had not made this discovery in time he would have been weeping for pride in his own courage in another sixty seconds. That reflection struck him as being so funny that he wanted to laugh at it, and then he found that there was danger in laughter. And being thus instructed by experience, he began to harden his heart in earnest, and acquited himself with an apparent coolness which would have done credit to a veteran.

After the first thick patter of a discharge, in which some fifty rounds appeared to have been fired, there was silence for a time, and the respite gave the assailed party a chance to complete its frail arrangements for shelter. Jethroe induced mules and horses alike to lie down, and took measures to secure them all. Then he and Harvey, by his orders, snaked away through the grass on either side until they were a hundred yards apart, making no answer to the loose and desultory fire which was directed at the cart.

"They're fanning out," said Jethroe in a distinct voice. "Keep a keen lookout to your left, and pot anything that shows itself."

"Ay, ay, sir," said Harvey, but his voice was so hoarse and thick that his own ears barely heard it.

"You hear?" asked Jethroe.

"Ay, ay, sir," said Harvey, clear enough this time. He kept an unrelaxing outlook, and by-and-by he was rewarded, for a head came round a boulder some three hundred yards away, and seemed to pass hither and thither. "I ought to be able to hit that," said the volunteer marksman, "if it will only stay."

It came a little further, and a pair of shoulders were in sight. Harvey fired. The man was gone. He could not have told whether he had hit or missed, but whilst he wondered a swift and piercing sound informed him that his own luck was not to be envied.

He had never heard a flying bullet so near at hand before, for it passed within a foot of his ear; but he had no need to be told what the meaning of the noise might be. He was strung to his utmost by this time, and debated within himself, quite coolly, as to the wisest thing to do. To move would be to set the long grass moving. He decided to play possum; he kept still and watched, and the long and uneventful silence was beginning to get at his nerves again, when a rustle within twenty yards of him suddenly tightened his clenched teeth, and pulled every nerve tense and taut as a fiddle string.

This, at least, was a daring enemy, who over he might prove to be. The rustle was repeated, and Harvey could locate the sound exactly, or so it seemed; but he would not fire until he had more than a sound to go on. Nearer and nearer it came, and at last he saw a moving bulk not a dozen paces away. He fired, and he was answered by a yell and a volley of curses in English. But the curses were suddenly cut short, and gave way to groans, and the groans sank lower and lower until they were stifled.

Then from the rifle of Jethroe the elder, ropl ropl ropl clear and quick and imperative, and ropl ropl ropl again.

"Any luck, boy?" asked Jethroe.

"One for certain," Harvey answered. "Two, I rather think."

"Two to me," said Jethroe, "and the attack's withdrawn. Let's have a look at the field."

The attack was certainly over for the time being, and a search over the field of combat revealed four badly wounded men. The first surprise was to discover that they were white men; but the next transcended it so far as to make it seem a circumstance of no value.

The man whom Harvey had hit at short range was no other person than plain Mr. Smith. He was lying all tumbled and twisted together in the attitude of death, and Jethroe, no less yet guessing who the man might be, turned him over so that he might look at his face. Uncle and nephew glared at each other without being able to find a single word between them, until Jethroe asked through set teeth, and with a voice like a mastiff's growl:

"What does this mean?" The question was not asked for the sake of an answer. "This fellow came by the same boat as ourselves," he went on, more calmly. "Do you know what that means?"

"Know?" said Harvey. "I know nothing; I'm all abroad."

"Monbodo's in it," Jethroe said, answering his own question. "Monbodo sold me the very instant my back was turned. This villain came over in our boat, with all his pals. They traveled steerage, and kept out of sight. Well, Little William," he added, looking down at the unconscious figure, "you have asked for it often enough, heaven knows! Whether you have got it this time I can't tell; but you'll plot no more murders in this life, Little William, you may bet on that!"

"What shall you do with him?" asked Harvey.

"Heaven may take him out of my hand," said Jethroe, "and I hope it may be so. But if he gets over this I shall do justice on him. I wish you had shot straighter, lad, and had saved me a dirty job."

And now the two set to work to save the lives of their enemies, which has somehow come to be the fashion with civilized men after battle, and Jethroe's experience of rough-and-ready surgery, which had been considerable, gave him hopes of two. One was beyond all remedy, and breathed his last within an hour of the close of the action. Little William's case was doubtful, and doubtful on the unhelpful side. Jethroe had no desire that he should live, and no desire that he should die, but he handled him to the best of his ability and made a shelter for him, and having done what he could for him, left him.

"I don't know if these heathen will respect a flag of truce or no," he said, "but I shall try them. They must take charge of their own. I'm not going to be bothered with 'em."

He tucked a white towel to a six-foot splinter of wood, which he chipped from the wagon for the purpose, and with his handkerchief across his chest and his rifle on his shoulder he marched toward the river bed, waving the flag from time to time. A man came out to meet him, and Harvey saw them encounter midway. They talked for a few minutes only, and then Jethroe came stalking back, with his pipe in his cheek and a smile in his eye.

"They're sending over," he explained. "A cart and one man for their wounded and their carrion. I keep our friend William as a hostage. It won't be long before they're here."

He busied himself once more about his prisoners, one of whom had somewhat revived. The man, being questioned, was willing to be communicative. He hadn't troubled himself much about the rights and wrongs of the matter, he confessed. He had been told that a party of adventurers were trying to jump a valuable claim. He had been offered a handsome sum to come out and fight in the cause of justice.

"Justice?" asked Jethroe.

"Well, that's how they put it," said the wounded man. He wasn't a judge and bench. It was no particular affair of his, and fifty quid was fifty quid, wasn't it? and not so particular easy to lay hold of these hard times."

"And how about Tom Monbodo?" asked Jethroe.

Somersby Is to Be Sold.

Lovers of Tennyson will be interested to hear that the Somersby estate is in the market. The center of attraction there is, of course, says the Academy, the rectory, a picturesque, rambling structure with a dining room which externally resembles a chapel. The room in which the poet first saw the light overlooked the lawn and the church, perhaps "the God's house" of "The Two Voices," where his father officiated, stands on a low hill opposite the house. The garden is full of associations of "In Memoriam," but it should be remembered that the trees are not as they were in Tennyson's time—"the towering sycamores" and "the poplars four" have gone and the whole place is a wilderness. A "gray old grange," the reputed residence of "The Northern Farmer," stands close to the rectory.

A little way from Somersby is "the brook that swerves to left and right thro' meadowy curves," passing in its course three mills, one of which may have suggested certain points in the landscape of "The Miller's Daughter."

It is also the subject of the poem known as "The Brook." On the same estate is a wooded dell, deep, wild and shady, which is called "Hollywell Glen." Here Tennyson wrote "Byron Is Dead." It is not improbably "the dreadful hollow" which "grides and clangs its leafless ribs and iron horns" and should appeal to readers of "Maud." Not too far away is Mablethorpe, perhaps "the lover's bay" mentioned in "The Golden Supper" and the seaside resort where Tennyson for the first time saw "the hollow ocean ridges roaring into cataracts."

An Obscuring Feature.

"Yes, I have a pretty big mouth," said the candid man, "but I have learned to keep it shut. I got my lesson when I was a small boy. I was born and brought up on a farm, and I had the habit of going about with my mouth wide open, especially if there was anything unusual going on. One day an uncle whom I had not seen for years paid us a visit. 'Hallo, uncle!' said I, looking up at him with my mouth open like a barn-door. He looked at me for a moment without answering, and then he said, 'Close your mouth, sonny, so I can see who you are!'"

Said the Right Thing.

Mother—Why did you let him kiss you?

Edith—Well, he was so nice about it. He asked—

Mother—The idea! Haven't I told you you must learn to say "No"?

Edith—That's what I did say. He asked me if I'd be very angry if he kissed me.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Always look a mule in the face when you have anything to say to him.

AGRICULTURAL

There is probably a greater mileage of wire fence in Texas than any other three States, and Texas people ought, therefore, to be the best judges of how to make them permanent. About "strain posts" a Texas stockman in Farm and Ranch says:

Numerous plans have been given for making secure corner posts for wire fences. I have tried many plans, and have found every plan to make a corner post bear the strain of a long fence to be a failure. The strain continues without intermission, and finally the corner post gives way. With short fences the difficulty is not so great. I have built some hundreds of miles of wire fencing. My plan now is to use what I call a strain post, instead of putting the strain on the corner post. I put down a good corner post, and at least twenty feet from this put down another good post, large and deep into the ground. At the ground, I run wires to the top of the strain post, and stretch these wires tight. This puts most of the strain on the strain post, and all the strain placed on the corner post comes at its bottom. Again, the strain post is not put into the ground straight, but leans to the corner. The effect of this is that the strain tends to force it deeper into the ground, instead of drawing it out. It will be found easier to put in a good corner post and two strain posts than to put in one corner post in the way often directed. I show the plan in sketch sent herewith. It will be best first to stretch the wires around the strain post, making them secure to it, and then to complete the fence by building a short fence at the corner. Of course, such care is not needed for short lines of fencing.

Care of Turkeys.

In many respects the turkey needs different treatment from other poultry. They will not thrive if kept long in confinement, nor do they want to be housed after they are two months old, neither by day nor by night. Give them free range where they can find grasshoppers or other insects and they will need but little corn. It is well to give them as much grain as they will eat at night, which will not be much if they have been fortunate in their hunting. This leads them to select a roost near the house, where they are less likely to be taken by owls and other night prowlers. This roost will most likely be the top of some small tree, though they will sometimes take kindly to a high pole under some open shed, but they like best to be where they can see on all sides of them and feel the wind as it blows around them. About two weeks before they are to be slaughtered they may be put in a pen of rails and given all the corn they will eat, but if confined longer than that they will grow poorer instead of fattening, though they are given the most tempting varieties of food.

Wagon for Fruit Barrels.

Professor Waugh, of Massachusetts, says in a report: In handling the fruit in the orchard, between the trees and the storage-room, or later between the storage and the shipping station, some suitable wagon ought to be provided. A stone boat is sometimes used and is not the worst thing that could be found, especially for short hauls and small loads. It is better, however, to have one of the low-down wagons made especially for handling fruit. In the illustration one is shown as it was actually made up at home. Some sills were hung by strap irons from the front and rear axles of a common wagon frame, and on these some boards were laid, making a floor for carrying the barrels. Handling barrels of apples in and out of the common high wagon is hard and expensive labor, and it is apt to damage the fruit.

"Worming" the Peach Trees.

"Worming" the trees to destroy the peach borer is in the routine of the peach grower, and the present is the season for it, provided precautions have not yet been taken earlier to make it unnecessary. But with every precaution examination is needed to find out if the vigilance was to no purpose. Whether the one or the other, now is the season for it. The external evidence of the presence of the peach borer is the gum exuded by the tree and the sawdust.

Increasing the Corn Crop.

P. G. Holden, Professor of Agriculture at the Illinois Agricultural College at Champaign, is a man whose name and memory should be much respected, not only by farmers, but by all who are consumers of American-grown corn. When a college student he was teaching school in Michigan. He asked his students to each bring him an ear of corn from the crib at home. They did so, and he showed them the different grades, from very good to very poor. Then he asked each one to plant three seeds from the best ear in a box, and water it. The result was an excellent crop of large, well-filled ears. The parents became interested, and soon began to plant only the best corn for seed, much to the advantage of their crop. After he went to Illinois, he began to talk the benefits of selected corn for seed to the farmers, and soon not only were most of them converted to his ideas, but the farmers of Iowa and Missouri were looking for better seed. Later on he became director of a farm near Bloomington, where they usually planted twenty thousand acres of corn, with an average yield up to that time of forty to fifty bushels per acre. The first year he increased the yield by ten thousand bushels above the best previous season. On some acres he brought the products up to seventy bushels per acre. This year he had a special train from which to talk about corn to the farmers of Iowa, and if we have this year the largest crop of corn ever grown in the United States, Professor Holden is entitled to the credit of having added millions of those bushels to the crop by his advocacy of the doctrine of using only the best seed.

Home-Made Corn Cutter.

This idea of a corn cutter comes from Australia where the machine is used in harvesting sugar cane and sorghum, as well as corn. The implement has been tried by a number of farmers in this country and pronounced a success. It is made by bolting the blade of a strong heavy scythe to a sledge or sled, as shown in the illustration. A rod of wrought iron about one inch in diameter is bent to form a follower, as shown. One of these machines is expected to cut about 2½ acres per day. After cutting, the crop is less easily handled than when cut by hand, but the total saving in labor is considerable.

Wire Chicken-Catcher.

A chicken-catcher is needed on many farms which can be made from No. 8 wire. Five feet of wire will be long enough. Bend a loop at one end for a handle, with a shepherd's crook at the other end, bending the crook small enough, of course, to hook around the leg of a chicken while it is eating. If the hook is made the least bit flaring, but closed up about a half inch, it will hold the chicken securely by the foot. This is the best way to catch a chicken when wanted on short notice. Many farmers train a dog to catch chickens, but this causes a commotion among the fowls and is one way to make them wild. Uneasy, frightened fowls are not thrifty, like quiet, contented birds.

Pulverizing the Soil.

Considering the pulverizing of the clods that turn up in the most heavy land after plowing, prevention is the best method. If the field is well drained and not plowed when wet, there may be no clods. It will, however, take two or three seasons to thoroughly fine the soil that has been injured by previous mismanagement. Fall or winter plowing, turning the land in ridges and leaving it as rough as possible, so as to expose the moist surface to the frost, will do the work, but unless there are underdrains to carry off the water the plowing may do as much harm as good.

The Dairy Barn.

The dairy barn, as built in the near future, may not have so much loft room, but instead a number of structures in the form of silos, but not at right angles or so solid. Into these several months' or the entire winter's supply of roughage may be cut.—Inland Farmer.

Large Requirements of Celery.

Celery grows best in a soil of high humus content, is a great user of water, and a large consumer of plant food. Quality suffers when there is a lack of ample food and drink, the crisp and sweet qualities giving way to stringiness and bitterness.

How to Make Soap.

All fat and grease from the kitchen should be carefully saved, tried out and made into soap before accumulating and becoming offensive. When people burned wood they made their own lye of green wood ashes; but how it is easier to make it of soda. For soft soap allow to five pounds of grease three pounds of washing soda and four gallons of boiling water. Put into a small tub and let it stand for several days until the grease is eaten up. Stir every day, using a wooden paddle. If too thick add more water. If wood ashes are used instead of soda, boil the mixture. You can tell when the grease is all absorbed by dropping a spoonful of the melted soap into a glass of water, when any grease remaining will show on the surface. If thick or ropy, add a little more lye.

Mixed Pickles.

For mixed pickles one may put together cauliflower, cut in flowers, button onions, tiny cucumbers, string beans cut in two, nasturtium seeds, small peppers, lima beans, morsels of watermelon rind and green tomatoes cut in slices. Drop them into scalding strong brine and allow them to cook in it for a few minutes, dip out with a skimmer and drain in a colander till quite dry. Pack into cans and over each pour a prepared pickle made by boiling with one quart of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoon of salt and four tablespoons of mustard. Pour over the pickles while hot and seal immediately.

Vegetable Salad.

Cut two boiled potatoes into squares and slice thinly one onion, one cucumber and two ripe tomatoes. Shave a little celery and some cabbage very fine and place the whole in ice water to become crisp. Arrange the vegetables on lettuce leaves with a dressing made as follows: Mix one-half cup of water, one-half cup of vinegar, one tablespoonful of made mustard, salt and sugar to taste, one cup of cream and a piece of butter the size of a walnut. Boil this mixture until it thickens, and when cool stir in the yolks of three eggs and cool one minute.

Peach Preserves.

Pare, halve, stone and weigh choice freestone peaches, adding the kernels from about a fourth of the pits. Allow three-fourths pound of sugar to every pound of fruit and to 4 cups of sugar a cup of water. Dissolve in one-fourth cup of water the peaches, and in the few pieces at a time until they are clear, then lift each piece out separately with a fork or skimmer. Condense the syrup, and when quite thick strain, reheat, adding the fruit, and after boiling seal in jars.

Strawberry Fool.

This is a most delicious sweet. One pot of strawberry jam, one pint and a half of milk, one egg. Press the jam (or fresh fruit) through a hair sieve with the back of a wooden spoon; simmer the milk with the yolk of an egg beaten up in it, add half a pint of cream when cooling, and stir all the ingredients into the fruit. Serve in a glass dish when cold.

To Make Cucumber Boxes.

Do not peel the cucumbers nor halve them, but cut an oblong opening in the top of each one; take them and scoop out the centers; fill with the green or white salad. Place a rose across the opening, put on the covers, leaving the rose at one end and the end of the stem at the other. The guests will remove covers by pulling out the rose.

Wheat Gems.

Beat one egg light, add two cups milk and one teaspoon of salt and gradually beat into it two cups wheat flour; put it into hot, well-greased gem pans and bake about twenty minutes.

Kitchen Helps.

Iron pots may be kept in good condition by being blackened on the outside.

DINNER FAILS TOO TEMPTING

Israel Taylor Was Hungry, So He Emptied All Four.

"Ah wuz hungry, boss—Ah means Judge, yo' honor. Ah wuz dat hungry I wud or et er muel. Mer stummick sho' did pester me."

Which was the excuse Israel Taylor offered for corraling the contents of four dinner buckets belonging to four of his brother laborers and quickly and incontinently consuming their contents, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"So you believe in the full dinner pail?" said Judge Fogarty. "Or, better still, you compound your belief and multiply your political convictions by four. Perhaps, however, I am mistaken—you may believe in the empty dinner pail, after all."

"Ah reck'n dat mus' be so, Judge, yo' honor," responded Israel, with a serious look on his face. "Ah jes' cummin' 'long de street en I seed dem fo' dinner buckets stan'n' dah lookin' kinder lonesum like, en Ah ax mersef, 'wut dem bucket doin' dah? III look like ter me dat somebody mighty kee- less ter let' dem bucket out dah all by dey sef, en 'bout dat time mer stummick done begin fer ter pester me."

en Ah jes' reach down en op'n one y'm en Ah seed er whole big piece v'ried chick'n en some braid en gravy, en Ah jes' tuck'n tuck er little bit er tas'e, en hit tas'e so good Ah tuck'n tuck er nuther, en fus' t'ing Ah knows dey warn't no chick'n ner no braid ner no gravy lef' in dat bucket. Den Ah look in de yuther buckets fer ter see de dey mouter got in dah, en sho' nuff dah dey wuz! Lens' ways dey look like de same, en fus' t'ing Ah knows dey warn't no chick'n ner no gravy ner no braid in enny er dem bucket 't all. Dat sho' did 'sprise me, Judge, en den dose yuther men en dat p'leece- mumm en cummed up en 'scuse me er eatin' hit all up. Dat mouter been so, Judge, yo' honor, but dey didn't seem er it. Dat all whu I gott'er say, Judge."

"Well, it isn't all I've got to say," replied Judge Fogarty, crisply. "If you're so hungry you can't leave other men's dinner pails alone I'll give you free board and lodging, where you can get enough work to justify your appetite. Five dollars or thirty days."

PACKERS PAY FINES.

Indicted Chicago Beef Men Admit Giving Rebates.

Four officials of the Schwarzschild & Sulzberger Packing Company, Chicago, pleaded guilty before Judge J. Otis Humphrey in the federal court to accepting railroad rebates in a conspiracy to violate the Elkins law, and they were fined a total of $25,000. This marked the first victory of the government in its prosecution of the packing companies in what are now known as the "beef trust cases."

A certified check for $25,000 was handed to the clerk of the court, and the four defendants were released.

"You are indicted under section 5440," said the court in opening his sentence. "You are charged with conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States laws. Your counsel has entered pleas of guilty, and if you have anything further to say other than has already been spoken, you are at liberty to speak."

The three younger defendants shook their heads; the fourth, the man of years, looked at the floor and said nothing, nor did he make a sign.

"Punishment for this offense as fixed by Congress has a wide range, giving the court unusual latitude, ranging from a nominal fine without imprisonment to a heavy fine and two years' imprisonment, all in the discretion of the court. I have heard on your behalf all of your side of this matter and what the government wished to present. I am disposed to consider this case with reasonable moderation. The sentence of the court in the case of the defendant, Well, will be a fine of $10,000 and costs and commitment to the county jail until the fine is paid, and in the cases of Todd, Skipworth and Caney a fine of $5,000 and costs, with the same provision in regard to the payment. The costs may be distributed among the four defendants."

To compete with the others it was stated, according to good authority, the independent concern accepted rebates from the railroad companies. A representative of the four defendants conferred with the Attorney General and subsequent trips to Washington were made with the result that an understanding was reached whereby, upon a plea of guilty, a fine should be assessed and the imprisonment clause waived.

If the case had gone to a trial the defendants would have met the government with a motion to quash the indictment on the ground that it was faulty. It is declared by the defense that they are charged with violating the Elkins act which went into force on Feb. 10, 1903, but the crime charged to have been committed is charged to have been perpetrated Feb. 3, 1903. Attorney Boyesen in his opening statement in court mentioned this fact, but declared that his clients did not wish to avail themselves of any technicalities. He had been instructed, he said, to enter a plea of guilty.

THE BURGLARS' HARVEST.

New York Has the Worst Visitation of Such Crimes in Her History.

There are more robberies in New York City at present than ever before in the experience of the metropolis. On the East Side burglars and sneak thieves are so active that men and women sit up nights with all manner of firearms handy to repel attacks. Five thefts in the region bounded by Bradford and Fulton streets, Arlington and Miller avenues were reported recently in a single night. In the eastern section of Harlem 30 burglaries have occurred in the past ten days.

In spite of strongest safes, more cunning electric alarm systems and more complete methods of identifying criminals, the burglar seems to be feared now as he was much more than he used to be. An evidence of this is the tremendous growth of the burglar insurance business in this country in recent times. A little more than ten years ago practically all attempts to insure people against theft proved futile. Companies were organized for this purpose, but after many vicissitudes they ended in failure. Since that time nearly a dozen corporations have come into existence, and so large is the business they do that in the last year they paid over $384,147 in burglary losses and more than two they collected $1,380,010 in premiums.

This increasing dread of the burglar is due to the fact that he never was more formidable or more active than at the present time. In these days of greater wealth those temptations which are so alluring to the thief have been multiplied. Consequently there are more diamond robberies and crimes of a similar character now than in the past. The discovery of more effective tools and more powerful explosives has also aided the robber, and although he does not attempt as often as he did to blow up the big city banks, because of their alarm systems and special patrols, his ravages in country districts have grown to an alarming extent. At the present time four out of five bank burglaries are committed in towns of less than 1,000 inhabitants. In the last eight years 776 banks situated in such communities were attacked, with a loss of $1,250,000. Safes once regarded as burglar proof have been shown to be little stronger than soap boxes in the hands of expert thieves, and consequently many companies will not insure country banks at all.

The modern burglar is more wantonly destructive than his predecessor. His use of "dope" or nitroglycerine often causes a greater damage to a building than the loss made by the theft itself. Even when he fails of getting loot he leaves a scene of wreckage behind. Of the $1,250,000 in losses incurred by banks, of which mention has already been made, more than $300,000 represented destruction of property. In robberies of dwelling houses and apartment houses the damage averages about one-tenth of the total loss.

Told in a Few Lines.

The home of Attorney Warren Leslie, New York, was robbed of several thousand dollars' worth of property.

How Tunnel Was Cooled.

The boring of the Ox Bow tunnel in Idaho is one of the great engineering feats of the age. The Payette river at this point makes a loop and by putting a tunnel through 1,200 feet the river bed is left high and dry for two and a quarter miles. It is the intention to mine the river bed for gold. Ordinarily the putting through of this tunnel would be a simple matter, but at 300 feet from the upper end and 250 feet from the lower hot water was struck. The heat at first was from 95 to 105 degrees, increasing as the work progressed to 133 degrees at the hottest point. Different fans and blowers were experimented with to cool the air in the tunnel, but without success, until William Flick, the superintendent of the work, thought of spraying the walls of the tunnel with water pumped from the river. Very simple pumping apparatus and common garden sprays were used with complete success. The tunnel is 28 feet wide and 8 feet high and the flow of hot water amounted to seventy-five miner's inches. The cold water cooled the hot water and it was pumped out with common pumps.—Scientific American.

A Poultry Mill.

Mary's father was trying the experiment of raising chickens with an incubator in his barn. The neighbors were much interested in this experiment, and, meeting Mary, one of them asked:

"Mary, have you any little chickens at your house yet?"

"No, but we're makin' some," replied the little maiden.—Lippincott's.

Make Money First.

"But," protested the plain citizen, "don't you consider honesty a good thing?"

"Sure," replied the politician; "but it's like all other good things—you've got to make money before you can afford it."

A Word of Warning.

Wife—I must run across the street and bid Mrs. Neighbor good-by. I'll be back in a second.

Husband—Well, you'll have to hurry. The train leaves in three hours.

CHRONIC ERYSIPELAS

Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, Although Whole Body was Affected.

Erysipelas or St. Anthony's fire is a most uncomfortable disease on account of the burning, the pain and the disfigurement; it is also a very grave disorder, attended always by the danger of involving vital organs in its spread.

The case which follows will be read with great interest by all sufferers as it affected the whole body, and refused to yield to the remedies prescribed by the physician employed. Mrs. Ida A. Colman, who was the victim of the attack, residing at No. 10 Winter street, Newburyport, Mass., says:

"In June of 1903 I was taken ill with what at first appeared to be a fever. I sent for a physician who pronounced my disease chronic erysipelas and said it would be a long time before I got well."

"Inflammation began on my face and spread all over my body. My eyes were swollen and seemed bulging out of their sockets. I was in a terrible plight and suffered the most intense pain throughout my body. The doctor said my case was a very severe one. Under his treatment, however, the inflammation did not diminish and the pains which shot through my body increased in severity. After being two months under his care, without any improvement, I dismissed him."

"Shortly after this, on the advice of a friend, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, two at a dose three times a day. After the second box had been used I was surprised to notice that the inflammation was going down and that the pains which used to come so much agony had disappeared. After using six boxes of the pills I was up and around the house attending to my household duties, as well as ever."

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine or may be obtained direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y."

Tumors Conquered Without Operations

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Cases of Mrs. Fox and Miss Adams.

Fannie Fox Miss Luella Adams

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive menstruation accompanied by unusual pain extending from the ovaries down the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use and write Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Read these strong letters from grateful women who have been cured:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—(First Letter.) "In looking over your book I see that your medicine cures Tumors of the Uterus. I have been to a doctor and he tells me I have a tumor. I will be more than grateful if you can help me, as I do so dread an operation."

—Fannie D. Fox, 7 Chestnut St., Bradford, Pa.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—(Second Letter.) "I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine."

"Eighteen months ago my monthly stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician, and was told that I had a tumor on the uterus and would have to undergo an operation."

"After reading one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After taking five bottles as directed, the tumor is entirely gone. I have again been examined and it has done me well."

—Miss Luella Adams, Colorado Hotel, Seattle, Wash.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all ailing women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

WITH our immense assortment we try to provide all that is good in every known style, so that each customer may find here what is best suited to her own taste and requirements. Modern methods are characteristic of "Waukegan's Greatest Store."

IN these days of strenuous merchandising it requires a broad knowledge, ample capital and excellent taste to compete with the large cities. We not only compete but we lead them, and we are willing to let our customers be the judges.

THIS is a store of the people and you have a right to expect low prices all the year—at the convenience as well as the advantage of the season. No fancy prices on new goods at this store. The first price is an economical price.

THE time is here for your Autumn outfitting, and there is a preparedness in every section of the store which will be very useful to you. There's always a pleasure in the investigation of new merchandise, especially on the threshold of a new season.

EVERY illustration in this, and all other advertisements of ours, is drawn directly from the original. We do not contemn the practice of picturing one article and selling a substitute. We leave that for others.

A Magnificent Display of Furs

It would take a whole page to tell our Fur Story, and the limited space at our disposal will enable us to enumerate but a few of the remarkable values we are showing. We can truthfully say we have a line that for beauty, style and size will compare favorably with that of any State street store in Chicago, and at prices 15 to 30 per cent lower. No hasty selection characterized the purchase of any of our fall lines, but we devoted unlimited time and thought to the selection of our fur department. The offerings of all the leading furriers were critically examined, and the line that we are offering our customers is an embodiment of the excellent values we found in each. This department is complete in every detail, and we are willing to leave the verdict to our customers. Our line embraces everything in the way of fur garments and wraps—from the fur coat for a fur coat up to $1,000 for a seal skin coat. Beauty, economy and satisfaction is the offering to all who visit the great Fur Department of this great store.

FREE $35 Set of furs FREE

We will give away a set of furs, consisting of Scarf and Muff, valued at $35, to the lady who guesses the nearest to the number of sales we make, as shown by the duplicate sale slips in the hands of our cashier, during our Grand Fall Opening week. Write your guess, name and address on a piece of paper and enclose it in a sealed envelope, marked "Guess," and mail or bring it to our store. At the end of the week sale slips will be counted, and a disinterested committee of three will examine the guesses and award the prize to the lady who guesses the nearest. Tell your friends, and do not forget to hand in your own guess. Employees of this store and their families are barred from the contest. Send in your guess right now.

IN INVITING THE PUBLIC TO THIS SALE in our enlarged store we wish to emphasize the fact that the enlargement of our business means enlarged stocks, improved store services—in fact far greater opportunities for the buying public. We are dedicating not only a larger store, but a far greater store, designed to supply the most varied needs of a rapidly increased patronage, amply equipped to satisfy the highest standards of quality and certain to accomplish far-reaching results in economy and public service.

Every Price is Marked down in plain Red figures at Waukegan's Greatest Store. A child can buy at the Same Price as an adult. The Plain Figures tell the Price

WITH our immense assortment we try to provide all that is good in every known style, so that each customer may find here what is best suited to her own taste and requirements. Modern methods are characteristic of "Waukegan's Greatest Store."

IN these days of strenuous merchandising it requires a broad knowledge, ample capital and excellent taste to compete with the large cities. We not only compete, but we lead them, and we are willing to let our customers be the judges.

THIS is a store of the people and you have a right to expect low prices all the year—at the commencement as well as the end of the season. No fancy prices on new goods at this store. The first price is an economical price.

THE time is here for your Autumn outfitting, and there is a preparedness in every section of the store which will be very useful to you. There's always a pleasure in the investigation of new merchandise, especially on the threshold of a new season.

EVERY illustration in this, and all other advertisements of ours, is drawn directly from the original. We do not condescend the practice of picturing one article and selling a substitute. We leave that for others.

A Magnificent Display of Furs

It would take a whole page to tell our Fur Story, and the limited space at our disposal will enable us to enumerate but a few of the remarkable values we are showing. We can truthfully say we have a line that for beauty, style and size will compare favorably with that of any State street store in Chicago, and at prices 15 to 30 per cent lower. No hasty selection characterized the purchase of any of our fall lines, but we devoted unlimited time and thought to the selection of our fur department. The offerings of all the leading furriers were critically examined, and the line that we are offering our customers is an embodiment of the excellent values we found in each. This department is complete in every detail, and we are willing to leave the verdict to our customers. Our line embraces everything in the way of fur garments and wraps—from 75c for a fur scarf up to $1,000 for a sealskin coat. Beauty, economy and satisfaction is the offering to all who visit the Great Fur Department of this great store.

FREE $35 Set of furs FREE

We will give away a set of furs, consisting of Scarf and Muff, valued at $35, to the lady who guesses the nearest to the number of sales we make, as shown by the duplicate sale slips in the hands of our cashiers, during our Grand Fall Opening week. Write your guess, name and address on a piece of paper and enclose it in a sealed envelope, marked "Guess," and mail or bring it to our store. At the end of the week sale slips will be counted, and a disinterested committee of three will examine the guesses and award the prize to the lady who guesses the nearest. Tell your friends, and do not forget to hand in your own guess. Employees of this store and their families are barred from the contest. Send in your guess right now.

IN INVITING THE PUBLIC TO THIS SALE in our enlarged store we wish to emphasize the fact that the enlargement of our business means enlarged stocks, improved store service—in fact far greater opportunities for the buying public. We are dedicating not only a larger store, but a far greater store, designed to supply the most varied needs of a vastly increased patronage, amply equipped to satisfy the highest standards of quality and certain to accomplish far-reaching results in economy and public service.

ILLINOIS STATE NEWS

IN DEFIANCE OF DENBEN.

Breese Driving Club Has Its Sunday Horse Races

The Breese Driving Club held its regular race meet Sunday afternoon without interference, in spite of the fact that Gov. Denben had given Sheriff William Itagan written and verbal instructions to see that no violations of the law occurred. The chief executive of the State had been apprised of the races by R. C. Lloyd, a non-resident of the county, who was making his headquarters in Breese as chief of a party of young men engaged in making a sail survey for the State. Lloyd asked the Governor to stop the races.

The Governor wrote the sheriff and informed him that it was his duty to enforce the law. Since this was made public Lloyd found that Breese was not a desirable place for him to remain in. Sheriff Itagan saved him from a severe beating on account of his letter and he changed headquarters. Gov. Denben called on the sheriff over the long-distance telephone, and told him that he must see that the law was enforced. After conferring with prosecuting Attorney Ford, the sheriff drove to Breese. His instructions from the prosecuting attorney were to make arrests in case any gambling was going on in connection with the horse races, since horse racing for purses is not a violation of the State law, according to the opinion of the prosecuting attorney. Sheriff Itagan said that he failed to discover any violations of the law in any form at the races, hence there was no interference. The Breese Driving Club has among its members some of the best citizens of that place among them the Mayor. They feel very bitter toward the originator of the trouble.

LOWER DAM AT LA GRANGE.

Plan to Save Flooded Bottom Land Along Illinois River.

Captain E. Wicks, a civil engineer for several years in the employ of the sanitary district of Chicago, has commenced the work of removing two feet from the top of the government dam at La Grange, a few miles below Springfield, Congress having granted permission to do the work. The dam is 810 feet in length, thirty-three feet wide, and it is estimated it will require a force of fifty men four months to do the work. The estimated cost of $15,000 will be borne by the sanitary district. It is hoped the removal of a portion of the dam will prevent the overflow of much bottom land along the Illinois river. In place of the portion of the dam removed will be constructed an automatic flush board two feet high. This will be raised during low water, making the dam as high as it is at present. In high water this board will drop automatically, lowering the dam two feet. River men are divided in their opinion as to the result of the proposed work. They hold that the drainage canal is to be increased, the change will have no effect whatever on the stage of the water.

LESSONS DANGER IN MINES.

New Law Provides for More Than One Daily Inspection.

Attorney General Stead, in response to a request for an interpretation of the new mining law, has made a ruling to the effect that where necessary, an inspector must make more than one mine inspection a day. Prior to the enactment of the shot firers' bill only one inspection was required. The law or order of things is made necessary by the fact that after the firing of shots there may be a heavy accumulation of smoke and gas in a mine, and if any considerable length of time intervenes between shifts this accumulation may become a menace and therefore there should be another inspection before the second shift goes to work.

END LONG HUNT FOR MAN.

Located Day Before Insurance Was to Have Been Paid Wife.

Del L. Gaston, missing from Monmouth for eleven years and given up by his family for dead, was located the other day in a Wyoming mining town by the Modern Woodmen, from whom Gaston's wife sought to recover $3,000 insurance. Gaston has been hunted down all over the West. His death claim was rejected by the Woodmen lodge and fought through several Illinois courts and both parties finally had agreed to compromise for $500. Gaston had remained, assumed another name and led a thrilling life. He will probably be arrested and brought home to be tried for bigamy.

FOLLOWS HELPFUL TO DEATH.

Chicago Man Takes Acid When Operation Is Fatal to Wife.

Life hold no value to Horace G. Meyer of Chicago without the companionship of his wife, and within an hour of the time when she died in Englewood Union hospital from the effects of an operation Meyer was dead by his own hand. Several weeks ago Mrs. Meyer was taken to the hospital. Meyer haunted the institution, and when refused permission to sit by his wife's bedside he would walk up and down for hours in front of the building. When he learned that she was dead he walked to his home and drank carbolic acid, dying before physicians arrived.

REOPEN MINE DISPUTE.

Machine Workers Appeal to Mitchell to Reverse Board Ruling.

A committee appointed at a mass meeting of machine miners of coal in the Chicago and Alton subdistricts to protest against the action of the State executive board of the United Mine Workers of America in signing an agreement with operators that no shot firers be employed in machine mines, sent a telegram to National President John Mitchell at Indianapolis, appealing from the decision of the State executive board. The telegram asks that President Mitchell render a decision in the matter.

State News in Brief.

A university debating association has been organized to include Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Mrs. Frederick Schaff, president of the National Congress of Mothers, is planning to perfect an organization in Illinois.

After sixty-one years of married life Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Morris of Marion died within forty-eight hours of each other.

While seated at a wedding feast Mrs. John Remillard of St. George was stricken with apoplexy, dying before aid could reach her.

Members of the Illinois Liquor Dealers' Association, in convention at Peoria, planned to raise a fund of $100,000 to fight the passage of local option bills and nullify work of Anti-Saloon League.

The east-bound Lake Erie and Western passenger train went through the derail at Gibson City and all the cars save one toppled over. No one was killed, but the engineer and fireman narrowly escaped death.

Walter Roe, a fireman on the C., B. & Q., while leaning from the cab window was struck by a train standing on a side track, five miles south of Bensenville. A rib penetrated one lung, causing death in a short time.

Miss Mary O'Brien, 17 years old, took poison while on the Jackson street bridge in Joliet. She was with a little girl at the time and after the rash act walked some distance and then collapsed. When found she was too far gone for medical aid.

Lloyd Jones of Waukegan is the first victim of a football accident reported this season. He is at his home suffering from a fractured collar bone and severe bruises about the body received while playing in a game in his home town.

The government's weekly report speaks thus of crop conditions in this State: Warm and cloudy; local rains, heavy in parts of central districts, very light elsewhere; corn in excellent condition, and has made good progress toward maturity, barley assured in central and south, and early safe in north; pastures, broom corn and cow peas excellent; pastures and apples deteriorating.

The last remaining Confederate battle flag captured by Illinois regiments in the Civil War has been returned. It did hang in Memorial Hall, Chicago, and was taken by the Eighth Illinois from the Thirteenth Virginia cavalry in April, 1862. Adj. Harry Lee, Camp No. 3, United Confederate Veterans, has taken the flag and sent it to the headquarters of the Virginia regiment. It was captured at Poolesville, Md.

Fred W. Oestreich of Valmeyer is the third member of that family to die of typhoid fever in three weeks, fulfilling a weird prophecy of William Oestreich, a son, who was the first to die. On his deathbed he said: "I must die of typhoid fever and so will Sister Annie and you, all." The sister sickened and died a few days later. She was followed by her father and now two more children are afflicted with the dread disease.

The Rockford, Beloit and Jansville electric line, connecting Rockford and Jansville, has been sold to a party of Cleveland capitalists, the sale being made through the Chicago banking house of Farson, Leach & Co. The line, which now runs from Rockford to Jansville, will be extended from Jansville to Madison and recent preliminary surveys were made by the parties who have been in the chase of the line. The consideration of the sale is said to have been $1250,000.

United States Deputy Marshal W. D. Mack went to Rochelle and arrested William Wolf, a prominent citizen of the town, who is charged with going to the postoffice there and obtaining mail that was addressed to one George M. Wilson. The letter, it is alleged, was opened by a young woman Wilson was engaged to marry and the contents are said to have caused the young woman to break the engagement. Wolf gave $500 bond to appear before the federal court when it convenes in October.

Andrew Carnegie, through his private secretary, James Bertram, has notified President T. H. McMichael that he will give Monmouth college $30,000 for a library building providing the college raises $30,000 additional as an endowment. Steps for the raising of the $30,000 will be taken at once. Monmouth college is the leading institution of the United Presbyterian denomination in Illinois and has upward of 600 students. It is now engaged in the raising of $100,000 for the erection of two memorial buildings to former presidents.

The action of the executive board of the Illinois miners in effecting an agreement with the operators in the Chicago and Alton subdistrict, from which the miners appealed to National President Mitchell, has been sustained. Mitchell sent a telegram to the miners, in which he virtually said he had no jurisdiction in the matter, as there was no violation of the interstate agreement. He urged the men to stand by the decision of the executive board.

Committees of the United Mine Workers at Auburn to take action on President Mitchell's decision, and decided to refer the matter back to the local unions, with instructions to take a referendum vote on the question of returning to work.

The Rev. D. S. Faris, D. D., for forty-eight years pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian congregation, O. S., in Sparta, announced to his congregation that he had determined to retire from the ministry. He is the oldest incumbent of a pastorate in Illinois and the second oldest in the United States. For over forty years Doctor Faris has been secretary of the Randolph County Bible Society. Doctor Faris was born near Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 11, 1830. He was licensed by the Illinois Presbytery at St. Louis, Oct. 10, 1856. In 1857 he received a call from Bethel congregation in Eden. The church was rebuilt at Sparta, and he was installed as pastor of the congregation Oct. 7, 1857.

STRIKES BLOW AT COMBINES.

Illinois Appellate Court Upholds Hamlin in Insurance Cases.

The Appellate Court has decided in favor of the State in the lengthy litigation begun two years ago by former Attorney General Hamlin against 110 insurance companies doing business in Illinois on a charge of entering into a combination for the fixing of uniform rates and thus wiping away competition. The decision was delivered at Mount Vernon and is far-reaching, as Mr. Hamlin's contention that such combinations, whether in restraint of competition in the sale of commodities or in the insurance or any other line of business can be dissolved under the common law in the absence of specific statutes, was sustained. The suit against the insurance companies was begun before Judge Schaff at Belleville and was a test case applying to the arbitrary fixing of insurance rates by one advertiser in the district composed of St. Clair, Monroe and Clinton counties, all the State being divided into similar districts by the companies. A demurrer was made to the original bill and in an amended form it was taken before Judge Burroughs of Edwardsville, who ruled against the common-law contention of the Attorney General, who about nine months ago took the case to the Appellate Court.

Former Attorney General Hamlin received a telegram announcing the purpose of the court's finding in his favor just as he was about to take a train for Kansas City and was much elated. "Under that decision," he said, "there is not a combination in restraint of competition or constituting a monopoly, no matter of what character, even to professional services, that cannot be reached and dissolved under the common-law principle contrary to carrying out of such purposes."

GOLDEN DREAM COMES TRUE.

Rich Deposit Is Found on Bluff Near Montezuma.

There is considerable excitement in Pike county over the discovery of gold. Two years ago Frank Clazebrook of Scott county purchased forty-two acres of land on a bluff three-quarters of a mile southwest of Montezuma. Some years previous his wife had dreamed of seeing a spring of water with gold issuing with the aqua. Recently while inspecting the newly acquired farm in company with her husband she saw a spring which she declared was almost an exact counterpart of the one in her dreams. After much effort she persuaded her husband to explore the bluff near the spring and he was amazed to find gold in paying quantities. A sample of 200 pounds of sand and gravel assayed at $325 a ton. Clazebrook dug into the bluff to a depth of seventy-five feet and the dirt assayed was of promiseous picking. If the entire bluff is as rich his fortune is made.

GOOD ROADS THE AIM.

Gov. Denben Makes State University Responsible for Highways.

Good roads in Illinois are to be under the sponsorship of the University of Illinois. By his appointment of Edmund J. James, president of the university, as the chief of the State highway commission, Gov. Denben indicated his intention of making the institution of learning a guardian of the highways. With President James, and completing the board, will be DeWitt Smith of Springfield and Joseph R. Fulkerson of Jerseyville. Dr. James and Mr. Smith are Republicans, while Mr. Fulkerson is a Democrat. The three commissioners held a meeting in the statehouse in Springfield and discussed plans for the work to be done during the coming year. Gov. Denben also named delegates to the convention of the Upper Mississippi River Improvement Association, which will be held in La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 10 and 11. The delegates will be Frank G. Allen of Moline, Chauncey H. Castle of Quincy and John S. Roper of Alton.

MIXES GOSPEL AND FINANCE.

Peoria Baptist Preacher Becomes Owner of a Bank.

Rev. George H. Simmons, pastor of the First Baptist church and president of the Interstate Bank and Trust Company of Peoria, has purchased the People's Savings Bank. The bank is a private institution and is capitalized at $50,000. Rev. Mr. Simmons has had an extraordinary career. He educated himself in a Kentucky theological school. His first business venture was three years ago, when he organized a company with $100,000 capital to manufacture a cereal coffee. He then organized the Interstate Bank and Trust Company of Peoria, with a capital stock of $200,000. In addition to this he is at the head of a movement to beautify the city and has been conducting a flower festival in the city. One of his innovations was holding religious services in the Coliseum, holding 7,000 people.

MEETS DEATH IN MINE CAGE.

Loss of Control of Machinery in Shaft Also Injures Three Men.

Ned Handel was killed, Dan Jenkins suffered fatal injuries, and Adam Fletcher and Charles Cushing received serious wounds in a coal mine accident at Stonington. The men were working half way down and signaled to be hoisted. The engineer lost control of the hoisting machinery. Two of the men attempted to jump at a landing, while Handel and Cushing were drawn to the top and pinned by the car.

GALESBURG MAN DEAD.

Cyrus M. Avery, Trustee of Knox College, Dies at His Home.

Cyrus M. Avery, aged 69 years, president of the Avery Manufacturing Company of Peoria and a trustee of Knox college of Galesburg, died at his home in the latter city of acute diabetes. Mr. Avery was one of the leading business men of the city and took a prominent part in church work.

OHIO FIGHT NOW ON.

REPUBLICANS OPEN THE STATE CAMPAIGN.

Fairbanks Makes Ringing Speech Advising the Country to "Let Well Enough Alone" - Governor Herrick and Senator Foraker Win Cheers.

With ringing speeches by Vice President Fairbanks, Gov. Herrick and Senator Foraker, the Republican State campaign in Ohio was formally opened at Bellefontaine, with a demonstration that in the opinion of the party leaders augurs a victory at the polls in November that will compare favorably with the Republican victories of years past.

The speech of Vice President Fairbanks was the feature of the demonstration. Besides dwelling on national issues he called attention to the importance of the Ohio campaign in national politics.

Senator Dick, chairman of the Republican State executive committee, expressed his confidence when he was called on for an important speech at the close of the meeting.

"You have observed in the past," he said, "that all Democratic victories were won in September, while all Republican victories are won in November, and I want to assure you, if you need such assurance after this magnificent meeting to-day, that the rule will not be changed this year in Ohio."

The statement brought to climax the enthusiasm that had marked the reception of the speeches of Vice President Fairbanks, Gov. Herrick and Senator Foraker and rounded out the genuine old-time Republican rally, to which a concert by the numerous bands and glee clubs in attendance and a fireworks display at night put the finishing touch.

Gov. Herrick showed that he had learned the art of the orator and campaigner, and with vigor, aggressiveness and frankness with which he reviewed his opponents and detractors to present any issue which he will not and cannot meet surprised even his closest friends. When he declared there would be no faltering or wavering, no evasion or apologies in his campaign the great crowd cheered enthusiastically and there were from 12,000 to 15,000 people in attendance.

The address by Judge Dow in opening the meeting was devoted chiefly to a review of the Republican party's record on the temperance question and an exposition of the various temperance laws given the people of Ohio by Republican Legislatures.

Gov. Herrick was given an ovation when he arose and the size of the crowd and the enthusiasm manifested prompted him to an opening remark that provoked further applause.

"They are charging that we have to go to the graveyard for Republican voters this year, but I see that it will not be necessary," he said, and the crowd showed that it understood and appreciated this reference to the recent primary frauds in Cleveland.

Governor Not Ashamed.

The keynote of the Governor's speech was his declaration, made with all the earnestness and passion he could throw into his voice: "I am not afraid, not ashamed. I am proud to meet people of Ohio."

Vice President Fairbanks and Senator Foraker, who followed the Governor in the order of speaking, did not touch upon State issues in their speeches, but both paid high tributes to Gov. Herrick's record and his fearless defense of his record and declaration as to the course he would pursue if re-elected. They pointed out the important bearing the result of the election in Ohio this fall will have on national issues and national politics.

In explaining why he would not touch upon State issues Senator Foraker paid Gov. Herrick the high compliment of declaring: "There is nothing left to be said on State issues. Gov. Herrick has covered that subject in one of the best speeches I have ever heard from a political platform in Ohio, and he has shown that he is ready and anxious and willing to give the people an account of his stewardship."

Senator Foraker injected some little humor into his speech and what caught the crowd particularly was the suggestion that the Democrats of the country were about ready to propose that President Roosevelt be re-elected unanimously in 1908.

"I am not going to commit myself to that afternoon," he said. "I have too much regard for Vice President Fairbanks' interests to seek to shut the door in his face in that manner. On the contrary, I am inclined to predict that everybody will get a square deal in 1908."

Dangerous to Defeat Party.

"The defeat of the Republican ticket in Ohio would inevitably fill the country with some measure of apprehension," said Vice President Fairbanks. "It would tend to shake confidence in the ascendancy of the Republican party. It is not the part of prudence to continue in the path whose virtue we know? Is it not the part of ordinary good business judgment to adhere to present political conditions rather than strike down the Republican party in a state of revolutionary political parties?"

"We appeal with confidence to present conditions for confirmation of the virtue of Republican principles and the efficacy of Republican administration."

"Let well enough alone is a well-worn phrase, yet it possesses great virtue. When business conditions are unexcelled, when both labor and capital are generally and profitably employed it is not the part of wisdom to revolutionize political parties."

"A Republican Congress will readjust tariff schedules whenever such readjustment is essential to preserve the integrity of the system and to maintain the law in wholesome operation."

"Change will not be made for the mere sake of change or to promote free trade, whose disastrous effects we well understand. Each adjustment of duties will be made responsive to a sound economic demand. Whenever such demand exists Congress will in a wise and patriotic way give effect to it. It will not proceed in a manner to disturb and unsettle but to maintain the stability of commercial conditions. The subject will be considered not in a narrow and technical spirit but in a broad way, having in view the largest common good."

"The subject of railway discriminations is of wide interest. The question obviously is one to be dealt with with full knowledge and not by an appeal to prejudice or by loud declamation. It must be settled not in the light of mere personal or party politics but according to the principles of strict justice, in the light of right as between man and man. It will be settled in the language of your platform, so as to promote and insure the rights of all individuals, interests and localities."

"Legislation which hitherto has been enacted to cure the generally admitted evils has not accomplished all that was intended or all that was deemed necessary. It has not put an end to unjust favoritism and the time has come when the laws must be strengthened so as effectively to accomplish what hitherto has been ineffectually attempted and thus put an end to all possible opportunities of common carriers to give or shippers to receive favors which will not be enjoyed by all in absolutely the same manner."

"The President has brought the matter to the attention of Congress and Congress has been called upon to proceed in the light of past experience and present information to enact such laws as will effectually remove the evils which confessedly exist. There must be an end of discrimination."

"Republican triumph in Ohio will mean the endorsement of the administration of President Roosevelt. It will show that the people are satisfied not only with the soundness of the great policies of the Republican

HURRY UP THE CANAL.

PRESIDENT URGES CONSULTING BOARD TO MAKE HASTE.

"Advise Me, Not What You Think I Want to Hear, but What You Think I Ought to Hear," He Warns - Important Utterances.

President Roosevelt is urging in the strongest terms the necessity for a plan for the construction of the Panama canal which may be accomplished in the shortest possible time. In his recent remarks to the Consulting Board of Engineers of the Isthmian Canal Commission he said many things which are regarded as of the utmost importance in that connection. These remarks have just been transcribed and transmitted to the Board, and General Davis, its chairman, has been authorized to make them public. The President said:

"What I am about to say must be considered in the light of suggestion, not as direction. I have named you because in my judgment you are especially fitted to serve as advisers in planning the greatest engineering work the world has yet seen; and I expect you to advise me, not what you think I want to hear, but what you think I ought to hear."

There are two or three considerations which I trust you will steadily keep before your minds in coming to a conclusion as to the proper type of canal. I hope that ultimately it will prove possible to build a sea level canal. Such a canal would undoubtedly be best in the end, if feasible; and I feel that one of the chief advantages of the Panama route is that ultimately a sea level canal will be a possibility. But while paying due heed to the idea of perfectibility of the scheme from an engineer's standpoint, remember the need of having a plan which shall provide for the immediate building of a canal on the safest terms and in the shortest possible time. If to build a sea level canal will but slightly increase the risk, then of course it is preferable. But if to adopt the plan of a sea level canal means to incur one or two, and insure indefinite delay, then it is not preferable. If the advantages and disadvantages are closely balanced I expect you to say so. I desire also to know whether, if you recommend a high level multilock canal, it will be possible after it is completed to turn it into or substitute for it, in time, a sea level canal, without interrupting the traffic upon it. Two of the prime considerations to be kept steadily in mind are: 1-The utmost practicable speed of construction; 2-practical certainty that the plan proposed will be feasible, that it can be carried out with the minimum risk."

The quantity of work and the amount of work should be minimized so far as possible. There may be good reason why the delay incident to the adoption of a plan for an ideal canal should be incurred; but if there is not, then I hope to see the canal constructed on a system which will bring to the nearest possible date in the future the time when it is practicable to take the first ship across the isthmus; that is, which will in the shortest time possible secure a Panama waterway between the oceans of such a character as to guarantee permanent and ample communication for the greatest ships of our navy and for the largest steamers on either the Atlantic or the Pacific. The delay in transit of the vessels owing to additional locks would be of small consequence when compared with shortening the time for the construction of the canal or diminishing the risks in its construction."

In short, I desire your best judgment on all the various questions to be considered in choosing among the various plans for a comparatively high level multilock canal, for a lower level with fewer locks, and for a sea level canal. Finally, I urge upon you the necessity of as great expedition in coming to a decision as is compatible with thoroughness in considering the conditions."

CIRCUS TENT BLOWN DOWN.

Ringling Bros.' Big Canvas Collapsed at Maryville, Mo., Three Persons Mortally Hurt and more than a score seriously injured when the tent of the Ringling Brothers' circus was blown down Monday afternoon.

Five thousand persons were gathered in the main tent when the storm broke and the scene of panic and suffering followed the collapse of the big tent cannot be described. Great poles, whole rows of seats came crashing to the ground, bearing the bodies of spectators—men, women and children—beneath. Cries of the injured and shrieks of fear of those who were hurt were mingled with the roars, lulls, the trumpeting of elephants, the fearful cries of rage and terror of wild animals in cages or in chains. Tents containing animals were overturned in the midst of the crowd, the fear that the animals would escape new stress to the panic.

The great, heavy, wet canvas burst all for some minutes and rendered all work of rescuing the injured very difficult. The stronger of those in the audience rushed for the exits when the first crash came and, in their frenzy of escape, rushed between mothers and their children, separated families, knocked down frail women and added to the general confusion and peril of the situation. The most seriously injured were caught under the great center poles of the main tent. Scarcely one of those buried under the wreckage escaped slight bruises and cuts. Otto Ringling said this was the worst storm his circus had encountered since 1880.

A hand car, carrying fourteen Italians, was in collision with a work train in the north yards of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad, at Dubois, Pa., seriously injuring six of the foreigners, three of whom will die. The collision was the result of a driver's error.

An epidemic of typhoid fever prevails in the town of Nanticoke, near Wilkesbarre, Pa. Over 100 cases have been reported to the board of health. The opening of public schools has been deferred and public funerals have been prohibited.

Her Object.

Mrs. A.—Do you know Mrs. B? Why, they say she treats her children like cats and dogs.

Mrs. Z.—Yes, I understand she is trying to rent a flat in an apartment house.

Mrs. A.—What has that to do with it?

Mrs. Z.—Why, you know they allow cats and dogs in apartment houses in preference to children.

Shells for Holy Water.

Tridacna shells are very commonly used in churches for holy water basins and even fonts. The largest, perhaps, are those in use in St. Peter's Rome. These shells attain a weight of 500 pounds (the two valves together), the animal itself sometimes being twenty pounds in weight. The word "tridacna" is from the Greek tridaknos (eaten at three bites), but who could eat a twenty-pound animal at three bites?—St. Nicholas.

Foley's Kidney Cure makes the diseased kidneys sound so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Panic Caused by Eclipse.

In Egypt, in the eclipse of 1882, soldiers had to guard the British camp from the excited Egyptians who would have invaded it. As it was, their wild shrieks as the sun became overcast were sufficiently disturbing.

Avoid serious results of kidney or bladder disorder by taking Foley's Kidney Cure. Sold by J. H. Swan.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

Many people who are neglecting symptoms of kidney trouble, hoping "it will wear away," are drifting towards Bright's Disease, which is kidney trouble in one of its worst forms.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

stops irregularities, strengthens the urinary organs and builds up the worn-out tissues of the kidneys so they will perform their functions properly. Healthy kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood as it passes through them. Diseased kidneys do not, and the poisonous waste matter is carried by the circulation to every part of the body, causing dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, sluggish liver, irregular heart action, etc.

If you have any signs of Kidney or Bladder trouble commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once, as it will cure a slight disorder in a few days and prevent a fatal malady. It is pleasant to take and benefits the whole system.

How to Find Out.

You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine passed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased, and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE should be taken at once.

G. B. Burhans Testifies After Four Years.

"G. B. Burhans of Carleton Center, N. Y., writes: 'About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick-dust sediment and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed, and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble.'"
Two Sizes, 50c and 100c.

Sand Dunes Made Fertile.
More than 150,000 acres of sand dunes in France, which once were blown about by the wind until they overwhelmed great stretches of fertile ground and even threatened to bury whole towns, are now covered with forests of pine, which produce quantities of turpentine, lumber and charcoal.

You may be just as skeptical and pessimistic as you please. Kodol will digest what you eat whether you eat or not. You can put your food in a bowl, pour a little Kodol Dyspepsia Cure on it and it will digest it the same as it will in your stomach. It can't help but cure indigestion and Dyspepsia. It is curing hundreds and thousands—some had faith and some didn't. Sold by J. H. Swan, Antioch.

Antarctic Area.

The Antarctic area consists of two continental land-masses of unequal size—Queen Victoria Land and King Edward VII Land—separated by a marvelous barrier of flat-topped icebergs, and of two seas extending far to the south—the Ross sea and the Weddell sea.

Throat Coughs

A tickling in the throat; hoarseness at times; a deep breath irritates it;—these are features of a throat cough. They're very deceptive and a cough mixture won't cure them. You want something that will heal the inflamed membranes, enrich the blood and tone up the system.

Scott's Emulsion

is just such a remedy. It has wonderful healing and nourishing power. Removes the cause of the cough and the whole system is given new strength and vigor.

An Expert Opinion.

Mr. Andrew Lang says nothing is dearer than talk about patent putters, patent clubs and patent clocks. A good player can play with any variety, a bad player (and the boss are always bad players) cannot play well with anything.
